

2011 Transatlantic Program-Young Technology Leaders (TAP-YTL): Logistics & Transportation May 22-30, 2011

Professional development for young leaders - meet top logistics and transportation experts, get to know technology and service providers to the industry and gain exclusive access to world-class logistics and transportation facilities in Germany, the world's leading logistics hub

Program Description and Application Package

A. Program Summary

After a successful start to the Transatlantic Program-Young Technology Leaders (TAP-YTL) series in 2010, the German American Chamber of Commerce of the Midwest (GACCoM) is now accepting applications from students and young professionals for the TAP-YTL delegation focus "Logistics & Transportation." TAP-YTL will bring together 12 young leaders from the field of "Logistics & Transportation" for an intensive delegation program to Germany, the world's leading logistics hub, May 22-30, 2011.

This unique program will provide participating young leaders with an opportunity to meet top innovative thinkers, top logistics and transportation experts, get to know technology and service providers to the industry and gain exclusive access to world-class logistics and transportation facilities in Germany, the world's leading logistics hub. Destinations include cutting-edge logistics and transportation hotspots such as Frankfurt am Main, Hamburg and Berlin. The agenda will consist of theme-focused site-visits and presentations, personal interaction with innovative companies and industry leaders, networking functions with peers, cross-cultural training and language building activities.

The overall goal of the program is to bring future decision makers from the US and Germany together at the beginning of their professional careers or late in their studies, to build networks and promote knowledge transfer through intensive, content-driven encounters and experiences. Applicants must be from the field relevant to the focus of each trip, interested in modern Germany and have a basic knowledge of the language. One of the key aspects of the program remains to promote professional development within a transatlantic perspective through alumni activities. We encourage all participants to make use of our Alumni Network with its exclusive benefits. In addition, upcoming programs will focus on themes such as "Water Management" and "Information Technology." TAP-YTL takes place under the patronage of Dr. Klaus Scharioth, German Ambassador to the United States.

TAP-YTL encourages colleges and universities whose students are selected to participate in the program to offer course credits for the intensive 8-day program. Between 30-35 hours of German language exposure and learning within the field of “Logistics & Transportation” will be provided throughout the trip (details on specific education programs and German language exposure during the trip will be made available in the coming months and can be sent to university administrators for this purpose). This is a specialized professional development program that will enhance the participant’s knowledge about the field of focus while also promoting the participant’s understanding of German culture.

The Transatlantic Program-Young Technology Leaders is organized by the German American Chamber of Commerce of the Midwest (GACCoM) with the financial support of the German Federal Ministry of Economics and Technology (BMWt), which generously provides funding from its European Recovery Program (ERP). GACCoM has considerable experience in organizing similar exchange programs, having conducted the Transatlantic Program (TAP) for eight years for both U.S. professionals and students and a successful TAP-YTL: Sustainable Architecture & Urban Planning program in 2010.

B. 2011 Schedule and Program Details

Application Deadline:	March 17
Announcement of Participants:	April 14
TAP-YTL in Germany:	May 22 – 30
Alumni Reunion:	Summer 2012; exact date TBD

C. Eligibility Requirements

- Currently-enrolled college and university students (primarily targeted towards graduate and PhD students, but qualified undergraduates are welcome to apply), recent graduates and young professionals that are interested in expanding the skill set and experience
- Areas of concentration should include Logistics and Transportation; German majors and minors are welcome. Candidates with different backgrounds may apply if they feel that their background can offer a unique contribution. Exceptions may be made on a case-by-case basis. We encourage and accept applications from any candidate who might be well-suited for this opportunity
- Basic German skills
- Interest in modern Germany

- Work or practical experience in one's respective field is preferable
- Letter of recommendation either by a professor or an employer

D. Application and Selection Process

During the selection process, the participant's current/former major field of study and professional interests/current position will be taken into account in order to create the best possible fit between the program theme and the U.S. applicant. Besides the eligibility requirements mentioned above, we are looking for excellent TAP-YTL participants from across the United States who possess the following characteristics:

- Interest in applying lessons learned in the chosen profession.
- Open-minded personality, flexible, curious.
- Highly motivated to learn through first-hand experience about Germany and its respective technical field.
- Interest in current German economic and political topics.
- Interest in becoming an 'ambassador' for the US in Germany and vice versa.
- Motivation to join the Alumni Network and to stay in touch with the German American Business community long term.

The full application package must include:

1. Resume in English
2. Letter of motivation (1-2 pages) specifying reasons for student's interest in the program
3. Completed Questionnaire
4. Official transcripts documenting all studies
5. Signed letter of recommendation on official letterhead from a professor or from the applicant's supervisor at the company where he/she is currently working. An additional LoR (e.g. by a German Professor) is more than welcome.

Deadline to submit the full application is March 17, 2011. Incomplete applications cannot be considered. An email application (including No. 1; 2; 3) is sufficient to meet the deadline; a paper version with signed documents (No. 5) and official transcript (No. 4) needs to be received within one week of the deadline (March 23, 2011) at the latest. Please mail your application to:

Email: transatlanticprogram@gaccomm.org

GACCoM will evaluate the applications and conduct phone interviews in English and German with finalists before deciding on the final group of participants. Selection criteria will be the applicant's qualifications, his/her motivation for the program, basic German language skills and preferably work experience in the program field. Participation is limited to 12 individuals.

GACCoM will inform all applicants regarding the outcome of their application by April 14, 2011. Individuals accepted into the TAP-YTL 2011 will be asked to provide and fill out further documentation and forms on short notice. The first installment of the participation fee is due in May after the participants have been announced (see payment schedule in Section F).

E. Program Costs and Participant Responsibilities

This program receives significant funding support from the German government through its ERP. The remaining cost of a $550 participation fee plus travel costs to and from Germany must be covered by each participant. The participation fee has to be paid in one installment (see Section F for more information).

- The program covers the following costs:
 - Overnight stays, meals and transportation while in Germany
 - Fees for programming and cultural events that are part of the official trip agenda
 - Organization of the program by GACCoM and its partners
- Health insurance is mandatory for the duration of the program. Participants should either keep their US insurance if it extends coverage to them during their stay in Germany or purchase extra travel insurance coverage.
- Employers are encouraged to consider sponsoring their young professionals to participate in the program, as flight costs are not covered by the TAP-YTL.
- Participants are welcome to seek out additional stipends, scholarships or grants offered by universities, corporate sponsors or other organizations.

F. Program Fee

The program fee of $550 is due on May 5, 2011. Payment can be made by personal checks or Visa or MasterCard. Checks have to be made out to "GACCoM" or "German American Chamber of Commerce of the Midwest."

Please note that failure to submit payments on time may result in the forfeiture of a participant's slot in the program. In this instance, the forfeited slot will be awarded to an alternate candidate. If a participant retracts his/her participation at any time after having accepted his/her spot in the program, he/she will not receive a reimbursement for payments rendered.

G. General Information

Overall, this program provides a fantastic opportunity for motivated, well-qualified young leaders in the U.S. and we look forward to working with you! Should you have any questions, please contact the German American Chamber of Commerce of the Midwest in Chicago:
